Regional Platform Chair's Summary (to be published end of April 2017)

2017 Global Platform for DRR

Key messages:

Public authorities and business need to work together on disaster risk reduction to ensure public and private investments in DRR lead to more resilient societies. Incentives must be scaled up to reach individuals, households and communities. The contributions of the private sector may reduce the demands on limited public resources, while fostering investments that create jobs and growth.

Authorities need to include representatives of communities considered under UN Major Groups and other Stakeholders, especially persons with disabilities, refugees, migrants, asylum seekers and other vulnerable groups, in national and local strategies for DRR through a participatory and human rights-based approach. These groups should be recognized as vital participants of disaster risk reduction work. Inclusiveness has been highlighted as a winning principle to the Europe work in DRR.

National strategies must be aligned with local capacities and that local authorities must have adequate resources to perform work relevant to disaster risk reduction. Through the Resilient Cities Campaign, enthusiasm for local engagement in DRR has been built, but much more work remains to be done.

The use of science and technology in Europe as allowed for increased efficiency of early warning systems, data collection and research on disaster risk reduction. However, the strong potential of the science and technology community needs to be strongly build upon.

High number of good practices on DRR are available and need to be further shared.

2017 Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction

22-26 May 2017 - Cancun, Mexico

Key outcomes

The Global Platform Chair's Summary is intended to capture the essence of deliberations of the various sessions and identify specific, concrete and practical measures to drive implementation further over the following two years.

In addition, there may be a short high-level communiqué, reflecting the commitments of leaders across the various groups of stakeholders.

The Chair's Summary and the communiqué are not negotiated documents: the Chair facilitates their preparation. While the Chair's Summary and the communiqué are finalized at the Global Platform, their "elements" need to be identified through, and developed on the basis of, the preparatory process, and in particular through the definition of expected/desirable outcomes of the various Global Platform meetings and events, as well as inputs from the deliberations of the Regional Platforms.

Final Remarks:

- Understanding disaster risk is a non-negotiable requirement for DRR strategy and risk informed development
- Capacity assessment is mandatory to understand real impact of disasters.
- To succeed inclusive approach to DRA is critical. Establishment of inclusive NPDRR is the way forward. Open Forum for DRR and GPDRR are unevaluable tools to promote multi-stakeholder engagement.
- The National Platform for DRR is the key Governance tool to make this happen
